Dear Ms. Ransom,

I hope this message finds you well. I am reaching out to bring to your attention a matter of importance regarding the communications I have been sending to Ambassador Burns.

In the past, I have received notifications indicating that my messages were deleted without being read. While I understand that you may have multiple responsibilities and emails to manage, I would like to kindly request your assistance in ensuring that my communications are given proper consideration before being deleted.

As an Office Management Specialist at the U.S. Embassy in Beijing, I realize you may not directly handle all correspondence addressed to Ambassador Burns. However, given [REDACTED], I want to ensure that my messages are appropriately conveyed to him.

I understand that there may be various reasons why my emails may not have been read, and I am open to providing any additional clarification or assistance you may require. It is crucial that Ambassador Burns is made aware of the content of my communications, as they pertain to important matters related to [REDACTED].

Furthermore, I want to emphasize the urgency of the situation. Recent developments suggest that [REDACTED] and the information I have shared could have significant implications for [REDACTED].

I appreciate your attention to this matter and your assistance in ensuring that my communications reach Ambassador Burns. Should you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to reach out to me.

Thank you for your understanding and cooperation.

Additionally, I want to inform you that for the sake of transparency, this email will be shared online in the form of an open letter. It is essential that the communication process remains transparent, especially given the gravity of the issues discussed. I trust that this open approach will contribute to fostering greater awareness and understanding of the situation.

Thank you once again for your attention to this matter.

Sincerely,
Vincent B. Le Corre
